Even Mayor Rider is tired of playing politics.

The man whose business is handicapped by the law might try changing his business. Ever think of that.

Some mean sportsman has suggested that if Sunday baseball is stopped the Sunday paid choir will have to quit also.

Life is just one thing after another. As soon as the comet is gone preparations are made for the reception of Col. Roosevelt.

The statement sent out to the effect that four big lines of railroad in Oklahoma are fighting the proposed constitutional amendment repealing article nine, is just a June joke.

No man opposed to the bank guaranty law will be governor of Oklahoma. Joe McNeil probably thinks different but when the election comes on this statement will be fully vindicated.

If Jack Love is spending the state's money in defeating the proposition to repeal article nine of the state constitution it will perhaps be a mighty good investment and be worth more than it costs.

When political leaders are going wrong and everybody knows they are wrong it is time to stop following after them. The leaders of the regular wing of the republican party are dead wrong on the tariff and on railroad legislation and a good many other things not to mention Cannonism. The insurgents are on the right track when they refuse to stay.

"Oh, but I wish that Elizer homeward would come from the club!" murmured poor Henry Budwiser, toiling away at the tub. "All of my shorttricks are aching, how my vertebra hurts! I am so weary of baking, weary of washing old shirts! Weary of numberless stitches, weary of herding the kids, weary of patching up breeches, weary of wearing old lids! While I am scrubbing and sewing, working my hands to the bone, my wife she is jauntily going off to some club of her own; there, to a bunch of the ladies, she will deliver a spiel, treating of art work in Cadiz, or slumming around in Castile. Is it, I ask, is it justice, that husbands must suffer and groan, doing the labors that bust us, working our hands to the bone? Baking and sewing and washing, waiting our whiskers with tears, wading and swimming and sloshing, in soapsuds up to our ears?" Back from her club came Elizer, back to her own drawing room; and hearing the plaint of Budwiser, she swatted him one with the broom.—Walt Mason.
